Enjoy Shanghai' s food and discover Yunnan' s ethnic cuisine

Make precious memories in these beautiful places.

National first-class museums showcase Shanghai's 6,000-year local history and revolutionary heritage.

Shanghai History Museum

A 600-year-old site in a busy area of Shanghai, known for local snacks such as dim sum, vegetarian buns, and pigeon egg dumplings.

Chenghuang Temple

Take a night river cruise to enjoy Shanghai's stunning skyline, passing iconic sights such as the Bund and Lujiazui.

Bund Night Cruise

The Former Residence of Sun Yat-sen in Shanghai is a small Western-style house with a distinctly European design. In June 1918, Sun Yat-sen and Soong Ching-ling moved into this residence. During their time here, they enjoyed a relatively stable family life, supporting one another through both hardship and success while working side by side for their shared ideals.

Yu Yuan Garden

It was a private Ming Dynasty garden owned by Pan Yunduan, a former governor of Sichuan. It features classic Jiangnan garden style and preserves valuable cultural relics that reflect traditional Chinese culture and art.

The Bund

In 1844, the Bund area was designated the British Concession, with 52 historic buildings in diverse architectural styles, and it stands as a key site in modern Chinese history and a landmark in Shanghai.

Explore this thousand-year-old town, home to the Naxi people, with its charming ancient streets, bustling markets, and nearly a thousand traditional houses.

old ancient town of Shuhe

Experience traditional ethnic costumes

Enjoy singing and dancing with local ethnic minority groups.

It is a river formed in a deep valley upstream by the continuous accumulation of mountain streams and gullies after glaciers on Yulong Snow Mountain in Lijiang melted, with crystal-clear waters reflecting Yulong Snow Mountain, a painting brought to life.

Blue Moon Valley

Songzanlin Temple

It is a beautiful Tibetan Buddhist monastery situated around 5KM from the city of Shangri-La at an elevation of 3,380 metres in Yunnan province. It has a long history, having been built in 1679, and is the largest Tibetan Buddhist monastery in Yunnan province. The outlook from afar actually looks like Tibet's Potala Palace, people will refer to it as the Little Potala Palace.

Snow Mountain

Yulong Snow Mountain Nature Reserve in Lijiang, Yunnan, features a main peak at 5,596 meters and an average annual temperature of 53°F.

Dukezong Ancient City, a key stop on the ancient Tea Horse Road, is one of China's best-preserved large Tibetan settlements. Almost every Tibetan household has its own scripture hall, housing statues of Shakyamuni, Tsongkhapa, the Supreme Tara, and various Buddhist scriptures.
